The Academy Birectors, However, De Not directors of the Academy of Music met yesterday in the office of the Adams Express Company. Herman R. Le Roy was elected President permanently, Mr. Andrew J. Murphy, Becretary, and Mr. Le Roy, Treasurer. A communication from Horr Anton Schott was read. It was an offer to give German opera next fall and winter season, with Kraus, Leidl, Hill, Schott, and other artists. The operas "Rienzi," "Tannhaeuser," "Lohengrin," "Die Wal-kore," and others, produced last season in the Metropolitan Opera House, were promised. A nightly guarantee was asked for by Herr Schott, and a division of the receipts at the box office, The directors said, ironically, that this was a very modest request, and they denied the application. pulication.
M. Chizzola wrote to apply for the Academy M. Chizzola wrote to apply for the Academy next fall to give legitimate drama, with Nalvini and others. He wanted the dates of the Italian opera nights. Becretary Murphy was instructed to say no very politely to M. Chizzola. The dates for Italian opera nights will be kept open. Finally, Col. Mapleson's proposal to take the Academy for another year was read. It was not discussed or anted on. The Colonel asked to be assisted in the enterprise. The directors decided that the Academy should be urbished up, and that a large sum should be appropriated for the purpose. It was not appropriated for the purpose. It was not appropriated yesterday, and the procise nature of the improvements was not debated.

Later he found, as he says, that Wolf had been of no use to him. Janice Smith sent a court officer for Wolf. Wolf leaned over the deak and said something to the Justice in a low voice.

"You admit," said Justice Smith in a loud voice, "that you said you would influence the officers not to prosecute. You have, I must say, a very peculiar idea of your professional duties when you attenut to defeat justice." Wolf said that the Justice had misunderstood him. In the afternoon Detectives Price and Casey and Mr. Meares, proprietor of the hotel, denied that Wolf could possibly influence them. Justice Smith called Sergeant Williams.
"Sergeant," he said. "hereafter, you will not allow." Williams.

The Epidemie in Plymonth, Pa., on the In-WILKESBARRE, May 2 .- That the epidemic in Plymouth is on the increase there is no doubt. Seven deaths are reported to-day, including Jenkin Herris, his wife, and his brother William. Mr. Harris was first taken down with the disease two weeks ago last Sunday. His brother succumbed the week following, and on Monday last the wife, who was ministering to the wants of her husband and her brotherin-law, was stricken down. This morning the many hours. L. C. Dougherty, a well-known groceryman, is also among the dead. Two more of his family are not expected to live. John R. Lynch, a wholesale liquor dealer, is very low.

Dr. Smith was called from his bed at 4 this morning to attend a case on Coal street. His presence in the neighborhood becoming known he was called in to attend twenty-three cases on the same street. These cases were all new the victims being stricken down yesterday. Dr. Smith expects a frightful increase in the the victims being stricken down yesterday. Dr. Smith expects a frightful increase in the death rate next week. One hundred and twonty new cases are roported to-day. On every street in the town there are a dozen or more cases. On Gaylord avenue there are eighty houses, and in every one of these there is some member sick with the disease. On Church street forty families are afflicted. This is considered the healthlest street in the town.

Alarming reports come from the outlying districts, where the people are suffering greatly for the want of medical attendance. The doctors living in Piymouth have all they can do to attend to the sick in the town. They are completely worn out, and say, if the siege continues much longer, they will have to give up. At all hours of the day and night they can be seen hurrying along the streets in answer to sick calls. Their offices are crowded from morning until night with persons begging them to come and see a sick friend. The stillness of the night is disturbed by the hurried footstens of some one going to a drug store for medicine. The druggists keep open all night to accommodate the public. Father Donohuo, the Catholic priest of the town, and the sisters of Charity are kept busy attending the sick of their denomination.

First it was the female members of families who were taken sick, but now heads of families succumb as readily as their wives and daughters. When this is the case much aufering follows, as many families are left in destitute circumstances. The well-to-do people are contributing liberally to the support of the destitute circumstances. The well-to-do people are contributing liberally to the support of the destitute of more time and the means at hand will supply. In the uppercend of the town, known as Welsh Hill, twenty families are reported lacking the necessaries of life. There is talk of calling a relief meeting on Monday night, in which an appeal will be made to the nublic for aid. The Town Council has spent $1,200 the past week cleaning the streets. The work wi

PITTSBURGE'S TRUNK MYSTERY.

Italians Identify the Body-No Clas to the PITTHBURGE, May 2 .- At the Coroner's inquest last night on the body of the man found packed in a trunk at the depot in Pittaburgh, Drs. Hamilton and Shaw, who had made a post-mortem examination, testified that there wore no external marks of violence on the body. All of the organs were healthy except the lungs, which were badly congested. This could result from suffocation or strangulation. In accordance with this testimony a verdict was rendered "that the deceased came to his death from strangulation at the hands of persons to the jury unknown."

The body has been lying in Flannery's under-taking rooms all day, and a large number of Italians viewed the remains. This afternoon Mrs. Bonistalli, the wife of a Smithfield street Italian confectioner, identified the body as that of her brother, Pietro Caruso, a former peanut Italian confectioner, identified the body as that of her brother, Pietro Caruso, a former peanut vender of this city, who went to Chicago several years ago. Antonio Sabilno also recognized the body as Caruso's. He said he had worked with Caruso on a railroad near Chicago for a year. He was a peaceable man, and he never knew him to have a quarrel with any one.

The detectives here are endeavoring to follow up a clue obtained this morning. A man answering the description of one of the parties who checked the trunk at Chicago was seen at the Union station last evening just before the trunk was couened, but disappeared and has not yet been found. The body will be buried this evening.

CHICAGO, May 2.—The employees of the Pittaburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railway baggage room at the Union Depot here can furnish no clue that promises to lead to the identification of the person or persons who shipped the trunk containing the body found at Pittaburgh, yesterday. They say they check so many trunks every day that it would be simply impossible for them to remember anything concerning them, or the persons to whom they belong, unless something unusual should happen at the time to attract their attention.

"All I know about the trunk," said an employee, "is that it lek here at 5:15 P. M. yesterday on a regular passenger train, and was checked through to Pittaburgh. It was an ordinary packing trunk. One of our men thinks that it was brought here in an express wagon before noon by three Italians, and that it was the first trunk checked for the 3% train, This, however, is only supposition on his part." The baggageman says he could not identify the Italians who brought the trunk to the depot.

RCHO BIDDING UP COTTON.

People who were in the neighborhood of the new Cotton Exchange on Friday were startled by the new Cotton Exchange on Friday were startled by the force and variety of the sounds that arose from the main hall. A belief that something serious had happened to the cotton market, or that the brokers were indulging in a slugging match, prevailed for a time Several men who ventured into the building found the cause of the uproar to be the great echoing properties of the hall. The movable circular brass railing, or "ring," as the brokers call it, had been placed in the middle of the hall. The brokers assembled around the ring and shouted bids for June cotion. They were rather surprised to hear their voices echoing and reschoing. The din and confusion that followed the bidding of nearly two hundred brokers were what sartied passers by in the street. One of the brokers, who knew something of acoustics, suggested moving the ring to another part of the hall. The brokers surrounded the ring, grasped the brass railing, and showed it to the western side of the hall. The echo was just as bad, and the ring was rounded to the southeast end of the hall, with the old volunteer freemen's yell of "Rush her down, boys!" Business was resumed, and, much to the relief of bidders, there was no echo. suse of the uproar to be the great echoing properties of herebo.
Architect Post said that the centre of the hall was the very place the ring ought not to have been put in. The northwest corner is concave, and, the architect said, acts like a sounding board.

Special Motices. ASSOCIATION OF EXEMPT FIREMEN. CITY OF NEW YORK .- At a quarterly meeting held at Caledonian Hall, April 21, 1885, the following preamble and resolutions, presented by the Treasurer, James Y. Watkins, Jr., were unanimously adopted: Waikins, Jr., were unanimously adopted:
Whereas, Harry Howard, ex-Chief Engineer of the late Volunteer Pire Department, has generously donated to the burial fund of the Association of Exempt Firemen of the city of New York the sum of $1,000, and desiring to make suitable schnowledgment of the same, be it Resolved, That the Association of Exempt Firemen of the city of New York, in accepting the gift of $1,000 donated by Harry Howard, is deeply sensible of the generosity that prompted it and the unawerving fidelity to duty that characterised his connection with the old volunteer Department, and which its recollections perpetuate.
